

Fireworks Displays Banned by Burgess

Only Exception to Be Public Display on Community Playground.

A request from a Narberth citizen to Burgess Henry A. Frye for a permit to stage a private fireworks display on the Fourth on his property brought a reply stating that no permits would be granted for the use of fireworks in the borough, excepting the public display on the Community Playground. While small and harmless fireworks will be allowed, Mr. Frye said, the officers have been instructed to stop the use of any fireworks which are considered dangerous. This decision, the Burgess pointed out, will hold for the entire community.

Mr. Frye's letter on the subject follows:

"I am enclosing a copy of Ordinance No. 218 covering the question which you raised. Since this has been in effect, permits have been granted for nothing but the displays at the playground.

"For several years this ordinance was strictly observed, but with the widespread sale of fireworks outside the borough there has been an increasing amount of pyrotechnics used. So long as this has been confined to small and harmless things, the police have done nothing about it, but very close watch will be kept this year and the officers vested with authority to stop anything which is dangerous in their judgment.

"I am sorry that I cannot accommodate you, but my powers and duties are governed by the ordinance and you will have to be guided accordingly."

Playgrounds Open Monday

The Narberth School and Community Playgrounds will be open for use by the children of the borough on Monday, July 7. The two new tennis courts on the Community Playground have been completed and are ready for use, while many additional improvements in equipment have been made.

Baseball leagues, archery and a varied program of games and activities have been planned. The playgrounds will again be under the supervision of Allan B. Weatherall and two assistants. An average of ninety-four children were in attendance at the playgrounds last season and an even larger number is anticipated this summer.

Balcynar Rotary Installs Officers—Hears Talk On Chicago's International Convention

William H. Decker, Cynwyd, who succeeds W. Russell Green, Narberth, as president of the Bala-Cynwyd-Narberth Rotary Club. Mr. Decker is head of the Cynwyd Plumbing and Heating Company.

Officers were installed by the Bala-Cynwyd-Narberth Rotary Club at its meeting Tuesday, and a report on the International Rotary Convention of last week was given by Vice President Ralph S. Dunne, who with Raymond L. Watrous attended the event in Chicago as representatives of the local club.

With other Rotarians from the Main Line they left for Chicago Saturday, June 21, and returned June 28—on a special train carrying 150 Rotarians from the Philadelphia section. Seventeen thousand Rotarians and their wives attended the convention, including 250 delegates from clubs in sixty-three foreign countries.

"We were most impressed," said Mr. Dunne, "by the efficiency and courtesy shown its thousands of guests by the Chicago club. . . . A highlight of the convention was a speech by Paul Harris, founder of Rotary, which last week celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary. . . . We enjoyed the president's ball, a night pageant on

Jane Smedley Recipient of "Nellie M. Wetherill Award" at Narberth School

At the close of the school term this year Jane Smedley found herself a pupil of distinction due to the fact that she had proven herself a most unusual scholar. Jane was the recipient of the "Nellie M. Wetherill Award," being the girl with the best school record. Raymond Humphries received the award for the best boy student in the Narberth Public School. These two young people deserve recognition by their community for the splendid effort put forth during not only the past year, but all the years which they have spent in the Narberth School.

The "Nellie M. Wetherill Award" was established sometime ago by the Parent-Teacher Association (at the time known as the Mothers' Council) and was to be awarded to the boy and girl who, during their attendance in the sixth and seventh grades in the Narberth Public School, best combine the spirit of co-operation and sense of service with superior scholarship, high ideals, character and conduct.

The presentations were made by Mrs. C. H. Woolmington, president of the Parent-Teacher Association.

At the same time Jane received the D. A. R. award, presented by Mrs. Miller, for the highest mark in history for the school term.

Plans Complete for Fourth Celebration

Mammoth Fireworks Display On Playground to Feature Observance.

Plans are complete for Narberth's Fourth of July celebration which will again take the form this year of a mammoth fireworks display on the Community Playground.

In prompt response to the appeal sent out through the mails and in the columns of Our Town for contributions to the fund, the money has been rolling in to the treasurer, J. L. McRery, at the Narberth National Bank.

The aim of Narberth's celebration is to make it community-wide by having all share in the expense and all derive the pleasure from the brilliant display of pyrotechnics.

Those who have overlooked sending in their contributions to the fund are urged to do so without delay so that the books may be closed promptly.

A list of contributors as of Monday night follows:

Teachers Elected

At a special meeting of the Narberth School Board held on Monday, J. C. Kline was elected a teacher in the sixth and seventh grades of the Narberth School to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. Ruby Perishich. Miss Mary Hoover was also shifted from the fifth to the sixth and seventh grades to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Miss Florence MacKay. The vacancy thus left in the fifth grade will be filled at a School Board meeting to take place July 25, which will be the last meeting of the Board until fall.

Some Litter!

A litter of sixteen pups was born on Tuesday to "Sally," the German pointer of a new breed, owned by Joseph P. White, of 113 Essex Avenue, Narberth. "Sally," who is a short-haired feather and fur pointer of a breed the Germans have developed recently, has John Neuforsthaus for a father and Schoenheit von Grassthal for a mother. Several of the pups have been spoken for already, Mr. White said, since they make such fine hunters.

Week-End Closing

All offices of the Livingston Publishing Company, publishers of The Main Liner, Our Town and The News of Bala-Cynwyd, will be closed from Thursday night until Monday morning in accordance with the general custom of most business houses over the Fourth of July week-end.

Organist, Comedies, New Program Scheme at Egyptian

This week-end the Egyptian Theatre, Cynwyd, is featuring Charles "Buddy" Rogers in "Young Eagles," a war aviation film similar to "Wings," in which he and Richard Arlen first starred.

Commencing next Monday a new policy will be inaugurated by the Egyptian's management. Instead of presenting pictures on three two-day showings each week, one program will be seen-heard the first three days of each week, then the program will be changed on Thursday and run on Friday also, and a new feature will be presented Saturday, for the one day only.

The feature next Monday-Tuesday-Wednesday will be "High Society Blues," in which Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell have a new characterization and many pleasing songs. Commencing a limited engagement, Arthur Hinett, organist de luxe, will play a medley of "blues"—"High Society," "Limehouse," "St. Louis" and the Gershwin "Rhapsody in Blue." He will play on the Egyptian's costly Kimball organ, one of the sweetest-toned organs in the country, whose sound will be aided by the theatre's acoustics, which lend themselves so favorably to reception of the talking cinema.

Other features the first half of next week include Charles Chase in "Whispering Whoopee" and "Mickey Mouse" in "Barnyard Concert."

Coming next Thursday and Friday are "Ladies Love Brutes"—with George Bancroft, Frederic Marsh and Mary Astor — and "Blotto" — with Laurel and Hardy.

In response to many requests, the Egyptian has scheduled for a return engagement Saturday of next week "The Love Parade," tuneful, amusing, martial, dramatic, big hit of the season, whose cast includes Maurice Chevalier and Jeanette MacDonald.

Narberth Theatre Notes

"What a relief to attend the Narberth Theatre these hot nights!" fans are remarking, according to the borough playhouse management. "The theatre is at last 20 degrees cooler than out of doors."

Fannie Brice, stage comedienne, is featured at Narberth this Friday and Saturday in "Be Yourself." Accompanying features include an "Our Gang" comedy, a fable in sound—"Foolish Follies," the Fox Movietone News and a vagabond adventure—"The Golden Pagoda."

The feature next Monday and Tuesday is the romantic, tuneful "Under a Texas Moon." Coming next Wednesday and Thursday is "Song of the West," another outdoor picture with comedy by the popular Joe E. Brown and pleasing singing by John Boles, musical stage star, whose "talkie" hits include "The Desert Song" and "Rio Rita."

Cardinals on Top After Twenty-Inning Battle

After battling for twenty innings the Cardinals defeated the Casey All-Stars, 11 to 10, in a recent game. Gilroy's fine pitching was the feature of the game. Only two hits were made after the ninth inning.

"We saw the Merchandise Mart now being constructed, which will be twenty-three stories high and cover four city blocks. It will house more people than any other building in the world, and will be devoted to the display of every conceivable kind of manufactured merchandise. While in Chicago we noticed that wheat prices fell to their lowest in fifteen years. We learned that plans have been completed for Chicago's World's Fair of 1933, and that at least one contract has already been let.

FORE AND AFT

Splendid performance of "Beyond the Horizon" given by the Hedgerow Theatre.

"Beyond the Horizon," the very name hints at the enigma and dilemma facing the characters in Eugene O'Neill's play which was given a magnificent performance by the Hedgerow Theatre at the Anthony Wayne on Monday night. The play, incidentally, is the last which this talented group will give on the Main Line this season, due no doubt to the pitifully small audience.

Whether it is that residents of Wayne in particular and of the Main Line in general are completely captivated by the talkies, are too Scotch to pay a slightly higher admission or just didn't know about this play is a moot question, but the fact remains that they missed as fine a dramatic treat as one could wish to see.

But I digress. The play, as you know, was one by which O'Neill first gained fame, being written long before that tour-de-force, "Strange Interlude." The chief character, Robert Mayo, is the quintessence of the dreamer, one who imagines beauty and mystery and romance just "beyond the horizon." Just on the eve of departure on a sailing ship for the East, he is drawn into a romantic attachment with a neighboring farm maiden who persuades him to give up his, to her, foolish ideas. His brother, who was also in love with the girl, goes on the cruise in his place, being unable to bear the daily sight of them together. This is the beginning of the mis-adaptation and tragedy. The brother Andy, a farmer to the bone, sails the seven seas, and traverses the romantic East only to notice the smells and the sea-sickness. Robert, the dreamer and lover of the delicate, fanciful things of life, is tied down to the farm which he hates to the bottom of his soul, but sticks to manfully until it does for him.

The boys' father, James Mayo, wedded to the soil, is overcome by grief when Andy leaves the farm, but hides his sorrow under his outward anger. He is truly of the earth, earthy, and expresses his philosophy in the line, "you can get more satisfaction out of the earth than from any of those books."

Ruth, the girl Robert marries, is a simple soul who admires the manly virtues, and soon comes to regret her marriage when she discovers that her husband will never make a success as a farmer. Her love or infatuation for Robert dies, and she comes to realize that it was Andy, the healthy, practical farmer lad, she should have married. But when she again sees Andy, he informs her that he has "gotten over" it and doesn't love her any more. So her life comes to be a dull, drab thing. She is virtually incapable of love. Her feeling of despair and futility is summed up in one of her remarks: "There's a time comes when you don't mind anything any more."

Then there is Andy. The farm is in his blood. He would never have left it if it hadn't been for the alliance between his brother Robert and Ruth, his love. That fact made it intolerable. Being an essentially practical person, the elusive charms of the sea and foreign lands are lost on him. He had that for which Robert yearned, but to him it was of no avail. It was casting pearls before swine.

Frustration and futility would, indeed, be the keynote of the play, were it not for the faith voiced by Robert, who on his death bed, with hacking lungs, staggers out under the sky to gaze once more beyond the horizon, toward all the beautiful and mysterious things which he was kept from for the most part in his life, but which he somehow felt and knew would be the setting for another existence.

It is this sense of the mystery of existence, almost the awareness of the mystic, which sets O'Neill apart from other talented and clever dramatists. His feeling for this is expressed in the poetry of the lines, but on occasion he can be as acidly realistic and biting as the most fervid rabbit baiter.

The performance, as I have said, was a notable one. The acting

Favoring the Fire Marshal

The Board of Commissioners of Lower Merion Township during 1929 created by ordinance a Township Fire Department with the object of promoting closer co-operation and efficiency among the five volunteer fire companies in the township and with the Narberth Fire Company which co-operates.

One of the foremost recent developments is the installation of a central fire alarm system, operated through a telephone switchboard located at Police Headquarters in the Township Building, Ardmore, where a trained man is always on duty.

The next step under consideration is the selection of a fire marshal for the department, who would be a man well versed in firemanship, a man of poise and balance who could work with the volunteers. The chief reasons advanced for the appointment of such a man are to centre responsibility and authority and to push ahead on fire prevention work by cleaning up fire hazards. As stated at Monday night's meeting of the commissioners with representatives of the five township fire companies and other civic bodies, his work would supplement that of the volunteer companies.

By all means let us try this idea. It is constructive and progressive. Objections voiced by the firemen are reasonable, but not too great to be met and overcome. Many of them deal with the details of routine which have to be worked out as they arise. More serious ones, at least from their point of view: dislike of being bossed, a paid man working with volunteers, and an outsider, will require much patience and perhaps compromise to settle.

May we offer these brief suggestions? First with regard to being bossed. Everyone in turn is bossed by someone. Children by their parents and teachers; business employees by their superiors; politicians by their organization leader, et cetera, ad infinitum. It is not for the sake of bossing but of getting things done. It is in the interests of expediency and efficiency. An army without officers would put up a sorry defense against an equally brave, well-equipped force, in which organization and authority were centered and delegated.

As to the question of a paid man vs. volunteers: The fire marshal would be occupying himself with a full-time, man-sized job. We do not mean to disparage in any way the work of the volunteer firemen. They deserve only the highest credit for their self-sacrificing labors. The fact remains, however, that they are firemen in practice for a brief time each day. Not that they are not ready to extend their services but that they are not called upon to do so. The men at Monday's meeting seemed to be worried in a large measure about the jurisdiction of the fire marshal. Let them remember that a large and very important part of his work will be concerned with fire prevention when all the fire engines and apparatus is quietly stored in the various headquarters.

And now for the third objection of the firemen; their dislike of bringing in a man from out of the township. If we go back far enough it will be evident that very few of us now residents of Lower Merion were born here. Most of us are immigrants at one time or another. As President Sykes said the job is not being created for the benefit of a favorite son. The best possible man for the job is the one who will recommend himself to the commissioners, and as they are reasonable men, to the firemen also. And it is quite logical that a Bryn Mawr or a Cynwyd man (these are cited only as examples) in the post could be expected to be entirely impartial in his relations with men of other companies as a man from out of the township who comes here without any pet prejudices, friends in one company or another, etc.

Yes, there's money in being an author nowadays. Calvin Coolidge, who as a public man had to live in a two-family house, since he took to writing has moved into a $40,000 home.

JESS—IN FUN

Paul Peters, writing in the current issue of Mr. Mencken's amiable little publication, the American Mercury, describes Amos Jones and Andrew Brown as "two ham burnt-cork comedians." The Mercury is now hammering away at the very basis of American society. Not content with deprecating our religions and our literatures, our fraternal organizations and our government, our social and our political habits, it attempts to pull our national heroes from their pedestals. Amos and Andy are ham comedians? Why the Mercury might as justly say that Lindbergh is a ham flyer, that Dempsey's frail and fragile paw was never capable of fracturing even a small electric light bulb. One might as justly say that Washington was a ham general and Lincoln a ham President. The Mercury rushes in on dangerous ground; even angels would fear to tread on the popularity of the Pepsodent boys.

As a matter of cold mathematics, Amos 'n' Andy probably net a larger annual profit than the Mercury. In one fifteen-minute period they reach more different persons than the Mercury has reached in its entire existence. For every single person who recalls Mr. Mencken's most recent diatribe against the Rotary or the Mormons, there are twenty thousand who can report accurately and vividly upon the present state of Mr. Brown's courtship of the estimable, though plump, Madame Queen.

And don't let anyone tell you that Amos 'n' Andy are one whit less instructive than the Mercury. And it's not merely instruction about the care of the teeth either. Thrift, honesty, integrity and sensibility comprise a large part of what may be termed the moral lesson of Amos 'n' Andy. There is a lot of good solid common sense in America's most popular radio program. You may choose to call it propaganda, but it is propaganda that an America, given to overestimation of the magnitude both of its periods of prosperity and hard times requires. Amos can see the cheerful side of everything. Mr. Mencken might do well to follow his example. Both the mercury and Amos 'n' Andy are in their own ways amusing. As an educational influence the latter are constructive while the former is destructive. The Mercury is too busy shattering and pulling down to see that there is building to be done.

Possibly America's name problem could be solved by calling the child Charles Dwight Augustus Morrow Lindbergh. But even then the Junior would have to be omitted.

The present tariff is pretty much like the Einstein theory. Not more than fifteen people in the world really understand either. The authorities seem to agree that this is either the best or the worst tariff we have ever had.

The education of the Littlekiss dog proceeds consistently. This week he learned that bees are not particularly good to eat.

Jasmine has made up our mind to take a vacation this summer. We have rooms filled with leaflets from Yellowstone, Yosemite, etc. We have hotel folders from Nassau and Honolulu and Bar Harbor. We have illustrated booklets from all the leading steamship companies. I can, from memory, describe the equipment of every important train in this fair country. We have roadmaps and time tables and bus schedules. It looks like a great summer for the Littlekisses. We are having a grand time planning. I, from an intimate acquaintance with the Littlekiss finances, realize that our vacation will probably comprise an interesting afternoon at Independence Hall, which we have not visited for some time. Yet there is far more of pleasure in anticipation than in realization, so what care we if no extended trip results? There is none of the dust and heat of travel, none of the poor food or noisy rooms of big hotels, none of the haste and waste and petty irritations of modern locomotion in anticipation. Go away for the summer? Bah! It is far more enjoyable to live our summer vacation in our own parlor amidst the heavenly pleasures dreamed by summer resort advertising writers.

Borough Resident to Scale Mountain Peaks

Dr. Max Strumia, of Narbrook
Park, Left Saturday
For Canada.

IS U. OF P. INSTRUCTOR

Dr. Max Strumia, of 40 Narbrook Park, Narberth, an instructor in the Medical School of the University of Pennsylvania, and director of the laboratory at Misericordia Hospital, left Saturday on a trip to Canada to climb some of the peaks of the Canadian Rockies.

Dr. Strumia, a native of northern Italy, scaled several peaks in the Alps during his youth. During the past few years he has climbed sixteen mountains in this country and Canada.

Dr. Strumia met in Canada two friends, William Hainsworth, an electrical engineer from Seattle, and John Lehmann, who is attached to the Forestry Department at Everett, Wash.

The party plans first to climb Mt. Robson, which is in Jasper Park, British Columbia, with the purpose of finding a route to the top which will not be affected by the changes in the position of the ice fields on the mountain top. Mt. Robson, according to Dr. Strumia, is the highest elevation in the Canadian Rockies.

The party will then try to climb Mt. Alberta, which has been scaled only once before, by a Japanese party. A base camp will be established on the shores of Lake Kinney and on each peak they climb, a camp will be established at about 10,000 feet above sea level.

Dr. Strumia and Mr. Hainsworth last summer scaled the southeast face of Dent D'Herens, an Alpine peak which had never been climbed on that side before.

Narberth Lays Claims to a Poetic Delicatessen

Along about the end of June there came this unexpected tune from Harry H. Hamer's delicatessen, essence of Schimmel's and Schlör's and Wes-son.

"Twas in February, Harry claims, he wrote this verse. And at this date it looks still worse:

"On Lincoln's birthday, in memory of the (dark) colored man of the South":

"Way down South amongst the cotton,

Where it's warm and the Darky is not forgotten,

Sure, it's true and it's plain to see,

It was Lincoln who set them free.

But time has changed since those days:

"Way up North, where they have their own way,

He may be a darkey, and it's true,

But when the World War called him,

He stood for our dear Red, White and Blue."

Three cheers! Yip, yip. And now we have another effusion, straight from the hip—or is it shoulder? We'll know when we're older.

"He drove a golf ball through the air,

It fell to earth, he knew not where

Until he heard the luckless yell

Of him upon whose head it fell."

It seems Harry saw this choice bit in a daily and it inspired him to write

thus gaily:

"And started out then to see

The one who drove it from the tee;

But to be sure, to his surprise,

Upon the course he's sure to lie."

This alleged poem seems a bit obscure; we rather doubt it's literature.

It limps a bit and the versification shows Harry needs a good vacation.

But Harry means well and none can lessen his skill and renown as a deli-

catesen.—(By E. A. T.)

Large Classes Will Enter High Schools

The largest sophomore class in its history will enter the Lower Merion Senior High School, Superintendent S. E. Downs announced Wednesday evening at a postponed meeting of the township School Board. The class will include about 350 pupils, while approximately 380 will enter the Junior High from township and Narberth elementary schools.

Since the May meeting five new teachers have been employed: Mary DeSales Gates, Millersville graduate; Evelyn D. Jones, Juniata College; Mary Thelma Wise, Shippensburg graduate, and Margaret F. Glace, Elmira College graduate. Their teaching experiences range from three to ten years.

The elementary summer schools will open Monday. Preliminary enrollments indicate that there will be approximately two hundred and twenty-five children enrolled in the three schools, Ardmore, Ashland and Bryn Mawr. These sessions will continue for six weeks, five days per week.

The high school summer sessions for children in grades seven and eleven, inclusive, will open in the Ardmore Avenue building July 7 for a five-week term of six days each, with teachers from the University of Pennsylvania in charge of the classrooms.

The applications for kindergarten indicate that it will be necessary to open rooms in all elementary buildings except Bala and Merion Square. In Ardmore Avenue and Ashland the enrollment will require two teachers.

Paoli-Devon Improvement Ready by September 15

An improvement of 4.04 miles of the Lincoln Highway between Paoli and Devon will be completed and opened to traffic about September 15, according to W. D. Meyers, State Highway Division Engineer in charge of construction. This improvement will consist of a 40-foot dual-type pavement with two 10-foot concrete strips on either side of the present surface to conform with the Lincoln Highway generally in this section. The detour serving this section at present is about 1.5 miles in length and in good condition. The State pays for this improvement 100 per cent. on a contract awarded the Suburban Construction Company of Ardmore on June 2, for $329,801.93.

The Fourth

We love the dear Fourth, the glad, noisy Fourth,
With its bands, its rockets and fun,
And the Red, White and Blue as it floats overhead
Seems to whisper of victories won.

We rejoice in our freedom, but would not forget
The price that freedom has cost
In heartaches, and wounds, and deadly disease,
And the thousands of lives that were lost.

We're proud of our country, and, oh, how we love it,
A country that's just to our mind;
And if you should search the whole world over
No happier land would you find.

We have peace, and joy, and contentment,
A climate conducive to health,
And a soil that will yield abundant crops,
A country that's rolling in wealth.

"Our Country," we so often call it,
To it we have given our love;
And nothing could tempt us to leave it
Till we're called to that country above.

For all of these blessings we're thankful
On this the glad Fourth of July;
And we feel like singing a song of praise
As the band and the flag passes by.

Isaac R. Pennypacker Lauded As Historian

Ardmore Man Termed 'Foremost Living Authority on Civil War.'

Isaac R. Pennypacker, of Ardmore, who will give an account of the Gettysburg campaign in connection with the unveiling of a marker tomorrow (Saturday) near Frederick, Md., has been termed the foremost living authority on Civil War history. This title of leading historian was given to him by Major G. W. Redway in an article in the London United Service Magazine.

Captain B. H. Liddell Hart, most widely known of present day English writers on warfare and war leaders, has written of Mr. Pennypacker's profound knowledge of Civil War history and his critical power. Major John Bigelow and other American officers and civilians, among them Francis Rawle, overseer of Harvard University, have commended Mr. Pennypacker's war studies in similar terms.

The marker, at whose unveiling Mr.

Pennypacker will speak, will be near the site of General Hooker's tent where General Meade took command of the Army of the Potomac three days before the Battle of Gettysburg.

The exercises, presided over by William H. Stevenson, chairman of the Historical Commission, will comprise the invocation by Rev. Dr. G. E. Williams; presentation of deed for the site by Hon. Joseph Hendrix Himes, owner of the land, its acceptance on behalf of Governor Richie of Maryland and transfer to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania by Emory L. Coblentz; acceptance by Governor Fisher of Pennsylvania; unveiling of marker by the Misses Marilyn and Katrina Himes; remarks by Secretary of War, Patrick J. Hurley; address by Governor Fisher; introduction by Mr. George Gordon Meade, grandson of General Meade; an account of the Gettysburg Campaign by Mr. Pennypacker; benediction by Rev. Dr. M. S. G. Rupp.

The marker consists of a granite block from the Devil's Den on the Gettysburg battlefield and a bronze tablet designed by the architect, Paul P. Cret, of Philadelphia.

BENNETT & CO. Manager

Isolation Ward For Contagious Diseases Sought by Lower Merion Board of Health

Proposition Being Considered by Trustees of Bryn Mawr Hospital.

URGED BY DR. WILBUR

That a hospital for contagious diseases, commonly known as an isolation ward, may be established in the near future at the Bryn Mawr Hospital to serve the entire Main Line community became known this week.

A committee of the Lower Merion Township Board of Health consisting of Dr. Bertrand K. Wilbur, president of the Board, and Dr. Edward A. Shumway, has taken up the matter with Dr. R. G. Gamble, chief of staff of the Bryn Mawr Hospital, and it was referred to a committee of the hospital trustees at their meeting on Monday. At present the hospital's isolation ward is small and available for emergencies only.

"The Lower Merion Board of Health has recognized the need of a contagious disease hospital for many years," said Dr. Wilbur to a reporter for this paper on Wednesday. "Different members have been appointed from time to time to confer with commissioners, civic associations and neighboring boards of health to further the project."

"At one time the Board took up with the Commissioners the possibility of establishing such a hospital in Lower Merion Township but the maintenance costs and the uncertainty of sustained patronage made it unfeasible. It later developed that neither the Township nor the Board of Health possessed the legal right to establish such a hospital."

"At the time the Bryn Mawr Hospital made its drive for funds it was definitely understood that provision would be made for the care of contagious diseases, if the amount raised was in accordance with expectations."

Members of the Board of Health are confident that such a statement appeared in the campaign literature. "It is the opinion of those interested that if such a provision could be made, and providing the various boards of health meet the expenses of those unable to pay their own way, that it would be by far the wisest and best plan."

"The Lower Merion Board of Health is co-operating with the Main Line Medical Society for the care of contagious diseases."

It was pointed out by Dr. Wilbur that all cases of contagious diseases in the community would not be sent to such an isolation ward, but only those which would not receive proper isolation and treatment at home.

The Lower Merion Board of Health has a fund set aside in its budget, appropriated by the commissioners, for the care of indigent cases.

Sell Two Merion Lots

Chandler and Rankin sold for John R. K. Scott two lots in Merion. The first of these, the southwest corner of Winding Way and Standish Road, was sold to H. C. Grubbs, vice president of the Radio-Victor Corporation. This lot will be improved with a stone and half-timber English type residence, which Mr. Grubbs will occupy. The second lot, on Hamilton Road, was sold to Charles Alfred Allen, who will improve it with a Colonial farmhouse type residence which he will occupy.

Township Cancels 'Explosives' Lease

Agreement Reached With Atlas Powder Co. to Give Up Penn Valley Plot.

An agreement has been reached between the Lower Merion Township Commission and the Atlas Powder Co., of Manayunk, for the cancellation of the lease held by the latter in the Penn Valley. The property used by the concern for the storage of explosives is located just off Centennial Road, a short distance from West Manayunk. The lease entered into in 1927 had seven more years to run.

It is expected this action will cause the withdrawal or quashing of the bill in equity, presented by Percival Roberts, Jr., and Guy Croyle asking that the owners and lessors of the property be enjoined from storing explosives on the premises. About two weeks ago all explosives were removed from the two storage places at the request of the township commission.

Swimming Club Enjoyed at Colonial Village

Many members have been enjoying the excellent swimming at the Colonial Village Swimming Club, near Wayne, the temperature of the water being approximately 65 degrees. The 125 new bath houses are completed and many of them have been rented for the season.

The large flood lights have been adjusted and improved upon greatly. Extensive planting has been finished, and about one month ago all of the pools were drained and completely cleaned out.

Dr. Richard P. Lienhardt, the physician in charge of water tests, has been instructed to immediately start daily tests, inasmuch as the pools are being used at this time. All of the wharves or docks have been painted a brilliant green and white and sand sprinkled in with the paint, thereby doing away with any slippery condition of the woodwork on the docks. There will be two large floats this year in the upper pool, and these already have been placed in the water.

Narberth Drops Media For Third Straight

Three Runs in Seventh Breaks Tie; Victors Make Fourteen Hits.

CLIMB PEG IN RACE

By John Uberti.

Urged on by vociferous shouts of encouragement, Narberth batters piled into Media's pitching ace in the lucky seventh, added three runs to their total, breaking the 4-to-4 tie, and climbed another peg in the Main Line League race last Saturday. No more scoring took place after the seventh, the final figures being 7 to 4.

Although Narberth did not make much progress up the championship ladder in this game, they hurled the Media nine out of a tie with Berwyn, putting them in second place, while they now rest in third position. Brookline's victory over the Paoli Club proved the latter's Waterloo when they again sunk into the cellar position.

Like the prevalent weather conditions, the league race also seems to be getting hotter for its participants. There is a decided contrast in the race of the present season with that of the 1929 season when the Davismen copped the first and second halves to eliminate a title play-off at the end of the year, and then going out of bounds to snarl the Philadelphia crown. As the league statistics stand at present, every team of the unit has a fair chance of winning the laurels for the first half. But to repeat their performance of the past twelve years, Narberth must win both games on the Fourth of July to cop the initial play-off, provided, also, that Media is beaten by Paoli in the afternoon. If Media should win, then they will have to extend the first half season and play out the necessary games to break the tie.

Media and Narberth played shabbily last Saturday, both clubs gathering the total sum of seven errors. Had the champions played in championship form, the visitors would have been dealt a terrific lacing; however, once in a while even champions of sports must have their off days.

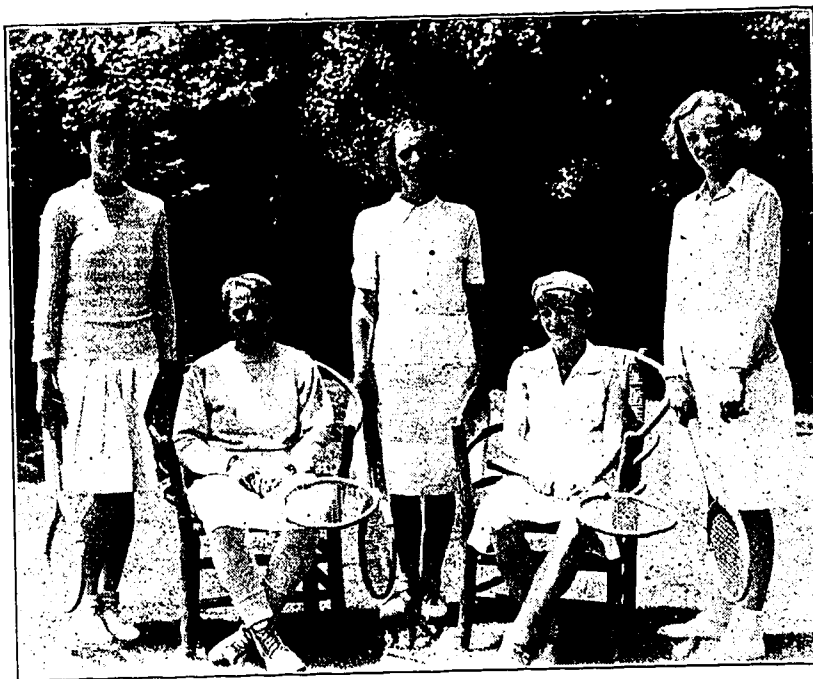

Howard Graham won his fourth conquest of the year in vanquishing the Media nine, holding them to seven dispersed hits, three of which, however, were bunched on him at the kick-off when they counted thrice. The fifth and sixth stanzas were the only other productive sessions for the visitors wherein they tallied a run in each frame for a sum of four runs. Then goose eggs glared out upon the scoreboard from the sixth on while Narberth bats became mischievous again in that reckless seventh to put a stop to a monotonous see-saw affair.

Media scored twice at the start and Narberth came back in the second fully equipped and determined to mix two hard singles, an easy infield bingle and a pass for two points to even the count. During the fifth and sixth innings Media scored one in each, but their deeds were quickly emulated in the borough's halves of these innings. As the scoring went into a deadlock in the sixth, the Davismen led the rival nine, 13 hits to 7. Another bingle in the home half of the eighth gave the tribe of Davis fourteen hits for the game.

An important shake-up of the rival battery took place in the seventh inning to silence a possible uprising from the Narberth boys, for, indeed, Narberth's ruthless Ruthian doings in that turbulent seventh is known to the

Commissioners and Firemen Discuss Question of Fire Marshal For Township

Firemen Object to Being 'Bossed', to an Outsider and to Paid Man.

SYKES EXPLAINS NEED

Over one hundred representatives of the five fire companies of Lower Merion Township, together with a few members of civic bodies, met with the Board of Commissioners at the Township Building on Monday, June 23, to consider the proposition of a fire marshal for the township fire department.

The need for a fire marshal was discussed by President Frank H. Sykes, who cited three primary reasons, viz.: (1) to develop fire prevention work and clean up fire hazards, (2) to centre authority and responsibility in the township fire department, (3) to supplement the work of the volunteer companies.

"We have no idea of forcing this idea onto the firemen, or there would be no cause for such a meeting as this," said Mr. Sykes. "We are here to discuss the matter informally, to present our reasons why we think it would be a constructive step and to hear your reactions—favorable or unfavorable."

And as it turned out there were plenty of objections on the part of the firemen and chiefs present. One centered around the dislike, or extreme distastes, for being bossed. As the chief of the West Manayunk company stated it, "no one is going to stand for being jerked around."

The second point of opposition raised was the fact that the firemen are volunteers and the marshal would be a paid man. This factor seemed to rankle with many present.

The third major objection was upon an outside man, presumably from Philadelphia, coming in to take charge over the heads of the local men.

The attitude of the Bryn Mawr Fire Company was voiced in a resolution read by the secretary of the company, Thomas Scanlon, which stated that the Bryn Mawr Fire Company did not favor the appointment of a fire marshal if his authority superseded that of the chief. In all other respects the Bryn Mawr company stood ready to co-operate with the Board of Commissioners in the matter.

George B. Matthews, president of the Board of Directors of the Merion Fire Company of Ardmore, stated his personal opinion in favor of the marshal providing the right man could be selected from Lower Merion Township.

George Pettinos, a director of the Union Fire Association of Bala-Cynwyd, struck a popular chord when he said that "firemen don't like to have a boss." He went on to say however that they are not firemen just for the fun of the thing, and are here to render the best possible service.

Questions of a more serious nature were raised by Walter C. Neely, president of the Bala-Cynwyd company, who asked if the measure had met with the approval of the Philadelphia Suburban Fire Underwriters, and whether it would tend to effect a reduction in fire insurance rates.

In reply Mr. Sykes stated that it had met with the hearty approval of the Underwriters. In developing the reply to these queries, A. D. Warnock, Haverford Commissioner and chairman of the Police and Fire Committee on the Board, stated that in his opinion the introduction of a fire marshal with consequent emphasis on fire prevention and elimination of hazards would greatly increase the chance for fire insurance rate reductions.

Another speaker cited the need for legislative reform in the channels through which fire hazards are eliminated. At present, he pointed out, there is so much red tape and delays that it is next to impossible to effect any real cleanup of fire hazards when the property owner is opposed. Mr. Sykes stated in reply that this situation would undoubtedly be corrected at the next session of the State Legislature.

Grant Wright, the president of the infant fire company of the township, Penn Wynne, made a strong plea for a forward spirit in civic fire fighting, citing the marshal proposition as an example of progress.

Friendliness, neighborliness, co-operation—this community can make good use of as much of them as you have.

Media Club and fans. Krause, of the Media High School, whose services will be used by Connie Mack, of the Philadelphia Athletics, and Humes, star maskman for the visitors, donned their playing togs, relieving Peckman and Jester of their ill-fated ministry. Krause's three no-hit victories over prominent Philadelphia clubs this year has earned for him considerable comment, especially from Connie, who sees a good future in the kid.

But it is evident that once those slugging boys of the Narberth cast get started, no pitchers of the universe can cope with their slugging tactics. Fleck was the first man up in the seventh and ran his consecutive hitting streak to twelve games when he poled Krause's fast offering out into deep centre for two bases and came home preto off Martin's vigorous thrust along the ribbon of cream in right. However, Martin was forced off the keystone by Rubincan's bid for a hit. Thomas blasted his first hit of the contest, a noisy double to left-field, to score the Rube from second, access to that station having been made possible previously by Hume's mishandling of his partner's heave. Yowell had an easy time reaching first as C. Mooney played circles around his comber and Thomas went to third as Worrall permitted Kearney's speedy and thorny grounder to make its way past his legs. Dick went to first with little trouble and Thomas walked home with the seventh run of the game.

Narberth Woman Gains Fame as Poet

Verse of Miss Jean Batchelor
Has Appeared in Many Periodicals.

IS TEACHER OF ENGLISH

As a prophet is said to be without honor in his own country, so often is his modern representative, the poet, without fame in his own home.

There is a young lady in Narberth, whose reputation as a poet has grown apace in distant fields since her graduation from Bryn Mawr not so many years ago, and whose verse has appeared in many of the leading periodicals of this country and England.

The young woman, Miss Jean Batchelor, of 105 Chestnut Avenue, is a teacher of English at the William Penn High School for girls in Philadelphia. Her mother, Mrs. E. C. Batchelor, is a former president of the Woman's Community Club of Narberth, and has recently won recognition as an artist, several of her paintings have been exhibited. Mr. Batchelor is also an amateur sketcher.

Miss Batchelor first burst into print with a poem published in the Smart Set in 1918. One of her lyrics, "On Longing to Be a Ghost," which was used by the London Mercury and is reprinted herewith, evoked praise from Walter de la Mare. Several of her poems have appeared in the New Yorker, while her verse has also been published in the Nation, Harper's, the current Bookman and the Commonwealth.

"Firmament," the other poem reprinted, is the author's favorite among her work.

On Longing to Be a Ghost
Are there long years to wait before I pass
With printless tread across the tender grass,
Slipping as silently as shadows run
From lawn to lawn before the setting sun?
How long to linger here until I go,
Inaudible as moonlight, over snow
And crush no crystal flake, until I stand
Lightly on water, or lift up a hand
Of phantom fingers to the blowing air
And feel it moving through them. Oh to stare
Invisible in eyes that cannot see
A dimmer daylight where my shade will be
Watching, as weightless as the wind,
Unheard,
Unrecognized, speaking no mortal word.
Are there long years to wait before I feel
No longer in my heart the point of steel,
Only a phantom wound in phantom breast,
Vanishing with the dawn—ah, that were best!

Firmament
Dark vineyard, dangling grapes of gold
Down from an unseen vine,
For those far clusters clear and cold
For that bright wine
The throat of Adam thirsted
When first you hung
Lovely above Eden
And he was young.

The rosy apple that he took
From Eve to eat
With secret savor of the earth
Was warm and sweet,
Yet longing still for stranger fruit
His tired eyes turned
Where stars on trellises of night

Blazed and burned.

On evening's ancient arbours
Those clusters still
Hang faint and far and lovely
And never spill
Wine to mortal lips,
Uplifted as of old,
Thirsting for immortal
Grapes of gold.

JEAN BATCHELOR.

Why Don't You Doll Up Your House?

Just a little paint on the old home makes it look like new. Possibly some new kitchen cabinets at very low cost, properly designed, with a coat of paint on the woodwork, and a little new linoleum in the kitchen will make Mother feel just like a bride again. Don't forget she spends half of her waking hours in the kitchen.

And how about those oak floors for the living room and dining room? They won't cost a great deal.

Won't the bathroom look fine if you put some Upson Tile on the wall and give it a couple coats of paint?

Add a little wall paper here and there and you'll be surprised how modern the old house really has become.

Many a family can bring their old house up-to-date and make it truly livable by spending just a very little money.

By so doing they can get another ten years of unusually satisfactory living out of the house which they thought they wanted to sell.

throughout was of an even quality which makes it difficult to single out any one or two individuals as the stars. One of the Hedgerow's Theatre's idiosyncrasies is that programs are printed without listing the names of the players who take the parts. So I can only give the ones whom I remember from former plays. Robert Mayo was played and admirably, too, by Ferd Nofer; William Price took the part of Andy Mayo, Dudley Vaughn portrayed Ruth, Harry Bellaver was James Mayo the father, and Miriam Phillips was, I believe, Mrs. Mayo, the sweet soul who accepted her lot with fatalistic indifference; Jean Sweidel took the part of the strong-willed, crippled mother of Ruth, and Jasper Deeter (this is only a guess since the man is such a wizard at makeup) played the doctor.

Cops Defeat Narberth Firemen Friday, 9-6

The Narberth Firemen took one on the chin last Friday night when their pals, the Lower Merion-Narberth Police team, defeated them on the Narberth Playground, 9-6. The battery for the officers was Dirkes and Valentine, while Yocum and Blessing did the trick for the borough firemen. Frank Flynn, versatile infielder, hit a lusty three-bagger for the coppers, which 'tis said might have been stretched into a home run.
